Michigan Dept of HHS launches app to improve home health care for patients

Hospitals have taken a lot of heat for readmissions within 30 days, also called bouncebacks. With the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services introducing penalties for excessive bounceback, hospitals were forced to find ways to help better manage the problem. Home health services, though not new, in many cases have taken center stage as a way to not only provide at-risk patients with the care that they need, but to also help manage the bounceback problem.
