

CNSI Recognized with Two Alliance for Workplace Excellence Awards

Rockville, MD – June 9, 2017 – CNSI, one of the world's leading business solutions providers with vast experience developing and delivering innovative information health care management technology solutions, was presented with two awards from the Alliance for Workplace Excellence (AWE): the 2017 AWE Workplace Excellence Seal of Approval and the 2017 AWE Health & Wellness Award. For the second consecutive year, the health IT company was recognized for its exceptional commitment to workplace quality and employee health and wellness.

“At CNSI, our success relies on the unwavering commitment of our employees, and we are thrilled to be recognized for our dedication to provide a quality workplace,” said Reet Singh, co-founder and chief administrative officer of CNSI. “We are grateful to AWE for recognizing the innovative programs CNSI has created for our people, including our diversity practices and work-life balance programs. Our goal was to create an environment that reflects the character of our CNSI community.”

AWE Applicants undergo a rigorous evaluation process in order to be considered for these awards. The Workplace Excellence Seal of Approval winners demonstrate an outstanding commitment to balanced leadership and the overall success of their workforce. Applicants are assessed in the following areas:

- Innovative corporate culture and management practices
- Family and employee friendly policies and programs
- Strong health and wellness initiatives
- Employee growth and learning opportunities
- Commitment to corporate, social and civic responsibility

- Diversity and inclusion practices
- Flexible work environment
- Safety and security

CNSI was awarded the AWE Workplace Excellence Seal of Approval Award for its outstanding commitment to workplace quality, including diversity practices and work-life balance programs. CNSI is proud of its diverse employee population, and through the monthly newsletter, CNSI acknowledges a variety of cultural holidays and employee celebrations in order to increase cultural awareness. In addition, the company works hard to create an inclusive environment where people feel valued and feel they provide value by continuously reviewing and expanding benefits, hosting employee engagement events, and providing an online recognition program.

The AWE Health and Wellness Seal of Approval Award recognizes CNSI programs that promote a healthy lifestyle. Within iCare – the umbrella under which all corporate social responsibility initiatives fall – CNSI has implemented a wellness program that has created a positive atmosphere and resulted in noticeably increased employee morale and productivity. The program includes an onsite fitness center, company-sponsored sports team, an annual 12-week health challenge where personal trainers are made available for employees, and an onsite flu shot clinic. Its health plan also offers employees an individualized program entitled “My Health Coach,” which allows for wellness consultations. Through the CNSI Wellness Tool Reimbursement Benefit, employees are granted up to $50 per year towards the purchase of a wellness item that promotes their personal wellness goals.

“Maintaining a healthy lifestyle is a core value of the CNSI family. From the very beginning we have sought to establish a culture that represents this philosophy,” said Singh. “Providing a fulfilling workplace improves our employees’ ability to provide innovative solutions to the healthcare industry.”
